Join your colleagues in an exploration of options for library automation. Bob Molyneux, Equinox Software, will give an overview of the open source ILS options. The FLICC/FEDLINK updates will include discussion of ways for the federal library community to work together on ILS and other library software planning, procurement and management.

In the afternoon, we will explore ways to improve and manage access to full text. Brian Cannan, OCLC, will provide an "under the hood" look at how OCLC is streamlining access to full text via WorldCat, working with publishers, aggregators and managers of repositories, e.g., government technical reports.

A representative from JSTOR will explore the issues further, based on their experience with a wide variety of partners in the international scholarly community. Please join the discussion to share your perspective on additional challenges and solutions.
